

THE INSTITUTE OF CONTEMPORARY URBAN ENCOUNTERS or short: CUE is about bringing together people devoted to a shared style or aesthetic approach, to work on a thematically defined subject.

The greater theme is the urban space and the shared approach springs from the interest in club-culture as the centre of what we call urban culture.

The idea of this institute is on one hand to network within and focus on various cultural activities, on the other hand to extend the available sources of inspiration and the space to work in, by setting up actual workshops in various cities.

CUE aspires towards embracing sight and sound of the city in an artistic context that spans across art forms such as graphic design, music, writing, painting, photography, film and aspects of architecture and society in general.

The Institute is open to anyone interested in the CUE line of work. CUE is a non-profit institution, carried and maintained by voluntary work and donations.

The Institute of Contemporary Urban Encounters is founded on the views and ideas of the CUE Society, based in Switzerland.
